PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION

RULES GOVERNING THE ACCEPTANCE OF CREDIT CARDS
BY UTILITY COMPANIES

Date of Public Notice: April 5, 2004

Date of Public Hearing: April 21, 2004

Effective Date:

I. Purpose, Methodology and Findings

The purpose of the Rules Governing the Acceptance of Credit Card Payments by Utilities is to standardize the procedures and financial responsibility for the costs associated with the acceptance of credit cards.

The Commission initiated Docket No. 3569 on October 8, 2003 to Investigate the Feasibility of Using Credit Cards as a Method of Paying Utility Bills. Data Requests were propounded and the responses showed that there was an inconsistency in the way utilities that were accepting credit card payments processed them and allocated the associated costs. It appeared from the responses that credit card fees made that method one of the most expensive methods of accepting payments for utility bills. Further information indicated that the Rhode Island Division of Taxation allows the payment of State Income Taxes through an independent third party credit card processing company which assesses a convenience fee to the taxpayer using the credit card.

The Commission conducted a Technical Record Session on March 12, 2004 to learn more about the way credit card payments can be handled by a utility, including a presentation made by a third party credit card processing company. One member of the public attended and supported the idea of allowing ratepayers to use credit cards, but opposed passing along those fees to other customers. Representatives from several of the utility companies indicated that there has been strong interest from customers in having the option to use their credit cards to pay their utility bills.

On March 18, 2004, at an open meeting, the Commission determined that if a utility desires to accept credit cards as a form of payment, it should be entitled to make that management decision and provide customers with the most cost-effective means of utilizing their credit cards. However, the Commission also determined that the “cost causer,” or the person using the credit card, should be responsible for the associated fees. Therefore, the Commission is proposing the following Rules.
