Request:

Please identify any Rhode Island Commission precedents for including in rate base the balance of (a) treasury lock hedging expense; and (b) unamortized debt expense.

Response:

The Company expended approximately $10.2 million for the Treasury lock, in addition to other amounts necessary to cover unamortized debt expenses incurred, in order to execute the most recent long-term debt issuance. The cash resources used by the Company to fund the transaction represent a significant, long-term investment of Company dollars, similar to a pre-payment of insurance, financing costs, or costs to reacquire debt, which are typically treated as rate-base recovery items.

The Commission has stated that: “[a]llowing Newport a fair rate of return on its investment is not ordered simply out of fairness. It is allowed because the United States and Rhode Island Supreme Courts have required that utilities be allowed to earn a reasonable profit.” Newport Electric Corp., Docket No. 2036 (1993) (Order No. 14039). Consequently, it is a basic ratemaking (and legal) principle that the Company is allowed to recover a return of, and a return on, capital resources expended to fund utility operations. The Commission allows the recovery of cash investment used to fund prepaid insurance through rate base. Bristol & Warren Gas Company, Docket No. 1563 (1981) (Order No. 10520); Blackstone Valley Electric, Docket No. 1289 (1978) (Order No. 9478) (prepaid expenses are allowed in rate base). The Commission has similarly allowed the recovery of financing costs through rate base. See, Newport Electric Corporation, Docket No. 1510 (1981) (Order No. 10372) (allowing $355,000 for financing costs in the rate base).

In addition, this Commission has a long-standing practice of including unamortized losses related to the reacquisition of debt in rate base. Such costs include premiums paid to debt holders to retire debt prior to its stated maturity date, and fees paid to attorneys, banks, accountants and others associated with the transaction. Examples of these types of financing costs are recorded to Account 189 as required under the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's (“FERC”) Uniform System of Accounts (“USofA”). The basis for including these costs in rate base is that the utility is allowed to earn a return on a long-term cash expenditure that it has incurred for the benefit customers.

When a utility issues new debt, it pays fees similar to those paid when debt is being reacquired, such as fees paid to attorneys, banks, accountants and others in connection with the issuance of that debt. In addition, in connection with the issuance of the $550 million of senior notes in March 2010, the Company paid $10.2 million to lock the interest rate on those notes and insure against any risk of the potential for interest rates to rise. These debt expenses and the treasury-lock payment associated with the issuance of new debt are similar in nature to costs incurred to reacquire existing debt, which the Commission has previously approved for inclusion in rate base. The payment for the interest rate lock is comparable to the premiums paid to debt holders to retire debt, in that such payments are made to take advantage of attractive interest rates and reduce financing costs charged to customers. The only difference is that costs associated with issuing new debt are recorded to Account 181 as required in the FERC's USofA.
