R.I.P.U.C. Docket No. 4382
In Re: Proposed FY 2014 Electric Infrastructure,
Safety and Reliability Plan
Responses to Commission's First Set of Data Requests
Issued February 18, 2013

Commission 1-2

Request:

On page 10 of the 2014 Electric ISR Proposal, the Company states that a portion of the need to repair failed and damaged equipment results from storms, vehicle accidents, vandalism and other unplanned causes. Please explain the types of events that would be covered by insurance policies, either the Company's or from third-parties and how those proceeds are factored into the ISR budget or reconciliation calculations.

Response:

The above passage refers to the Company's Damage/Failure capital spending rationale.

Damage/Failure items which would be covered by insurance policies or third party reimbursement would include such events as:

Vehicle Pole/Equipment Hits

Reimbursement received from the involved party's insurance company or payment of out-of-pocket costs are credited to the applicable work order or category, reducing the net restoration spending.

Equipment damaged due to digging

When the Company's underground assets are damaged by an outside party's digging, that party (or their insurance company) is responsible to reimburse the Company for the replacement cost of the assets. These costs are credited to the applicable work order or category, reducing the net spending.

Since the Company is primarily self-insured, no insurance proceeds would be received for other damaged/failed capital items due to storms, vandalism or other unplanned causes. Because the Damage/Failure category includes these and other types of unplanned events, the category's budget is primarily based on historic spending trends, including any previous reimbursements.

Commission 1-3

Request:

The budget in the 2013 Electric ISR Plan was $11,863,000 for Asset Condition compared to the 2014 Electric ISR Proposal which is $20,242,000. What portion of this is related to the shift from the feeder hardening program and how the System Capacity and Performance spending is affected.

Response:

The Feeder Hardening capital spending had averaged approximately $2.5M over the past three fiscal years prior to the $1.5M budget that was approved in FY2013 for completion of the program. The Feeder Hardening program (in the System Capacity and Performance category) is being replaced by a more systematic Inspection and Maintenance program (in the Asset Condition Category). As noted in Section 4 of the Company's FY2014 Electric ISR plan, Inspection and Maintenance ("I&M") capital spending increased to $8.5M from the $1.25M that was budgeted in FY2013, primarily due to ramping up overhead inspections to a five year cycle. It should be noted the move in major program capital spending from the Feeder Hardening program to I&M is not an actual dollar-for-dollar change since these programs have different specifications, goals and criteria for capital construction. In summary, the System Capacity and Performance budget decreased from $13.9M in FY2013 to 12.5M in FY2014, or $1.4M, primarily due to the completion of the Feeder Hardening program in FY2013, and there was an increase in the Asset Condition category due to the expansion of the I&M program by approximately $7.25M of capital dollars.

Commission 1-4

Request:

For each of the programs included in the Asset Condition category, please indicate the average age of the equipment to be replaced. What is the “useful life” of the equipment the Company is proposing to replace?

Response:

URD Cable:

The average age of the URD cable targeted for replacement or life extension in the URD rehabilitation program is 36 years. Cable in this program was installed from the late 1960’s to mid-1980’s. The cable is early vintage cross linked polyethelyne (XLPE) and was installed in a direct buried configuration. Cable is generally expected to have a 40 year useful life, however when possible this program will utilize insulation injection to extend the life for an additional 20+ years. When cable injection is not feasible due to other condition issues on a cable segment, the cable will be replaced with new Ethylene Propylene Rubber (EPR) cable with a 40+ year life expectancy.

Underground Cable:

The age of cable targeted for replacement in this program is typically Paper Insulated Lead Covered (PILC) cable 75-95 years old. This program is also used to replace some early generation Cross Linked Polyethylene (XLPE) or splices that are 1970’s vintage. The useful life of UG cable is generally considered to be 40+ years but performance has varied based on cable specifications.

Substation Batteries:

The average age of the equipment to be replaced is 18 years. It is the Company’s experience that the “useful life” of substation batteries is an in-service age of 20 years. Available battery life assumptions place the early onset of failure for a lead-acid battery at 20 years of service. Given this data, the Company believes that batteries older than 20 years have entered a stage where true performance capability is uncertain and maintenance costs have significantly increased due to the aging process.

Substation Metalclad Switchgear:

The age of the metalclad switchgear identified for Preliminary Engineering in FY14 is 64 years. The “useful life” of metalclad switchgear is determined by a combination of inspection results and manufacture age. Metalclads manufactured prior to the 1980’s have inferior insulation systems and deteriorated gasket systems.

Substation Circuit Breakers:

The average age of the equipment to be replaced is 43 years. The “useful life” of circuit breakers is determined by obsolete and unreliable breaker families. These families are targeted for replacement due to lack of support from the manufacturer, lack of spare parts, excessive maintenance costs, slow operation, improper tripping, in-service failures, and the availability of a low maintenance modern vacuum interruption technology.

Relays:

The average age of the relays identified for replacement is unknown. The “useful life” of the under-frequency relays is determined by obsolete and unreliable relay families. These families are electro-mechanical and solid state relays that are no longer sustainable on the transmission system. They suffer from a lack of manufacturer support such that technical support and spare parts are no longer available. Additionally, targeted relay families were selected based on family history, performance, and field maintenance experience.

With regard to the Spare Substation Transformer Program, the average age of the transformers for which the spares will provide coverage is 65 years. The “useful life” of substation transformers is based upon condition, which is determined by various test results, operating history, and inspection findings.

Request:

With regard to the Distribution Substation Battery Replacement, how many batteries have been replaced under the 2013 Electric ISR Plan? What was the cost per battery? How many batteries does the Company plan to replace with $0.43 million in FY 2014?

Response:

With regard to the Distribution Substation Battery Replacement Program, six substation battery systems have been replaced under the 2013 Electric ISR Plan with an additional one or two expected to be completed by the end of the fiscal year. The average cost to replace a substation battery system is $50,000. The Company has five substation battery systems planned for replacement in FY 2014, and expects that up to three additional battery systems, not yet identified, may require replacement due to condition concerns identified during the year.

Request:

The Tunk Hill Reliability Project is described as a pilot. Please provide more detail on the budget (length of bare conductor to be replaced, labor cost, etc). What will be the factors that will be used to determine whether the pilot should be expanded? Please identify the other areas that would be part of an expansion of the pilot in the future.

Response:

The Tunk Hill Reliability project will reconduct two miles of 1/0 Al bare wire primary conductor with 477kcmil Al spacer cable conductor at an estimated capital cost of $1.275M. Material costs are estimated at approximately $0.2M and the remaining costs are for labor, transportation, supervision, benefits and overheads.

Spacer cable construction is being utilized for its resistance to tree contact outages and has been a standard construction option for many years. This project is being considered a pilot to evaluate several other elements being implemented including the mechanism in which potential project locations are identified, the use of Grade B construction at critical pole locations, and the implementation of an enhanced vegetation management specification.

In selecting potential project locations, the Company has developed a means to identify Customers that Experience Multiple Interruptions (CEMI). An analysis of CEMI on adverse weather days can be used to identify areas of potential storm hardening.

In the area of reconductoring, attention to pole loading and the use of Grade B construction at critical poles (junction poles, switch poles, and rail road and water crossings) will be employed.

Along the two miles of reconductoring plus an additional 5.5 miles of overhead line down stream of the reconductoring area, the Company will employ a vegetation management strategy referred to as Branch Reduction.

Tree related concerns are a primary cause of damage and interruptions during adverse weather. As such, enhanced vegetation management in these areas will be a part of each project. A Branch Reduction Pruning specification has been developed to be employed in the targeted areas and is based on the following two-tiered vegetation maintenance clearance zone above conductors:

Clearance Zone: an area immediately above conductors to a height of 15 feet. All branches within the clearance zone are removed or reduced to parent or lateral branches outside the clearance zone, as necessary to achieve required clearance. No branches are allowed within the clearance zone.

Reduction Zone: an area above the clearance zone extending from X feet above conductors to a height of Y (may be “ground-to-sky” or a set distance). Upright branches beyond the Clearance Zone that are in close proximity but may not directly overhang conductors are included in the branch reduction zone. The size and extent of the Reduction Zone shall be adjusted based on line voltage, number of customers potentially affected by an interruption, the location and/or presence of protective devices, and other factors as specified. Branches within the Reduction Zone are subject to reduction pruning as specified below.

In addition to the Tunk Hill project in Rhode Island, the Company is implementing five additional projects (three in NY and two in MA) as part of its pilot. The lessons learned from all six projects will determine the future application of this program. Evaluation of the pilot will occur in stages. First, the Company will assess the methodologies for identifying candidate locations and scoping of projects to respond to identified issues. That can be done after the projects are design complete. In the years following construction, the reliability performance of those areas will be reviewed to determine the effectiveness of the projects. Assuming the results are positive, there are numerous potential locations throughout Rhode Island that would be candidates for hardening efforts to enhance performance during adverse weather events.

Commission 1-8

Request:

With regard to the Volt/Var proposal, please indicate whether the Company conducted an RFP prior to choosing UtiliData for the proposed project. Please indicate what cost studies the Company has performed to justify the expense. Has the Company utilized the proposed centralized management system in any of its other territories? If so, please provide the results of the Company's experience.

Response:

National Grid has not conducted an RFP related to this proposed project. As stated in the Company's response to the Division Data Request 2-9, the Company has been working with UtiliData at this time because of the unique opportunity to work with a local provider of such systems that is willing to work with the Company at no cost to develop order-of-magnitude cost estimates that can be used for "directional" discussions. At this time, the Company has been encouraged by the technology solution that UtiliData provides for Volt/Var control systems and strategies utilizing centralized control algorithms. In particular, the Company is of the opinion that UtiliData's system, which employs direct device control features and the use of high accuracy voltage sensing, increases the potential for the system to deliver substantial benefits. However, a decision to issue an RFP for competitive consideration or to "sole source" the Volt/Var control solution will be made only after the project has been through a final technical review/approval process.

As stated in the Company's response to Division Data Request 2-7, National Grid has not yet performed a trial to demonstrate the potential benefits of Volt/Var control systems and strategies utilizing centralized control algorithms. While the vendor, UtiliData, can claim a 3 percent to 7 percent reduction in system peaks, the key objective of this demonstration project is to gain the knowledge that would enable a benefit analysis to support future deployment. Potential benefits (with measurement/evaluation including the development of system performance base lines in advance of deployment) that National Grid hopes to demonstrate are as follows:

- Loss reduction (peak demand and energy loss reduction) - to be evaluated with system models.
- Peak demand reduction - At individual feeder and substation levels (demonstrated with on/off experiments to avoid the need for peak load adjustments (e.g. for weather, spot load growth/reduction, etc.).
- Capacity release - Improved compliance with internal planning guidelines requiring that feeder load (as measured at station bus) be as close to unity as possible during peak load conditions.
- System voltage performance improvement - Quantitative assessment detailing any reduction in customer voltage complaints observed and Qualitative assessment reviewing ability to respond to customer complaints and/or identify and respond to excursions in advance of customer calls.
- Operational Efficiencies - Identify and estimate reduction in annual maintenance costs (seasonal capacitor switching, annual capacitor inspections, regulator/LTC maintenance, etc.).
- Adherence to NE-ISO power factor performance requirements - Improved methods in both achieving and demonstrating (measuring) compliance.
- Customer Energy Savings - Trial would rely on methods developed by the chosen vendor to measure/estimate such savings.

National Grid has not utilized a centralized Volt/VAR management system in its other service territory.

Request:

Please provide a list of the other Volt/Var management systems and providers the Company has reviewed, either for Rhode Island or its other territories, and the reasons the Company chose UtiliData.

Response:

National Grid has not discussed the scoping of a Volt/Var demonstration project with any companies other than UtiliData. National Grid's understanding of this developing technology has come by way of collective experience gained from industry publications (including those from research sectors), trade shows, conferences, and informal discussions with equipment vendors and representatives from other utilities.

Commission 1-11

Request:

Can Volt/VAR management be considered an effective energy efficiency measure? If so, how?
If not, why not?

Response:

Volt/Var management has been claimed to provide energy savings on the grid and for customers as one of its outputs. However, as stated in the Company's responses to the Division Data Request 2-7 and Commission Data Request 1-8, National Grid has not yet performed a trial to demonstrate the potential benefits of Volt/Var control systems and strategies utilizing centralized control algorithms. The purpose of this demonstration project is to determine the benefits of Volt/Var management on National Grid's system. An expected outcome of this project is a determination of the effectiveness of centralized Volt/VAR control to provide loss reduction, peak demand reduction, capacity release, system voltage performance improvement and customer energy savings.

The vendor, UtiliData, claims a 3 to 7 percent reduction in system peaks and National Grid has seen similar reduction figures based on both system modeling exercises as well as the experience of other utilities. This level of improvement is significant enough to warrant investigation through this demonstration project to gain the knowledge that would enable a benefit analysis for support of future deployments.

The Company is progressing with the procurement process and intends to complete the first 100 percent cycle of mobile contact voltage testing in FY 2013. There were no costs for mobile contact voltage testing in the FY 2013 ISR. Testing for 100 percent of the Contact Voltage Risk Areas is included in the FY 2014 Electric ISR Proposal budget. Please explain how the Company will develop/continue the manual contact voltage testing cycle for each underground and overhead, including the identification of areas to be tested each year.

Response:

Overhead manual contact voltage testing is performed at the same time as inspection of these assets, which is on a five year cycle. The schedule is developed by feeder and the distribution is such that a share of all areas of the state are tested each year.

Underground manual contact voltage testing is performed on five year cycle, not dependent on feeder. The schedule for manual contact voltage testing of underground assets is developed by selecting at least twenty percent of the overall underground assets proportioned throughout the state for each year of the cycle.

Request:

On page 60 of the 2013 Electric ISR Proposal, the Company states that “the Feeder Hardening strategy identified feeders with characteristics indicating the potential for significant reliability performance improvements related to deteriorated overhead equipment and/or lightning interruptions. This program was essentially completed in FY 2013.” Please identify the feeders that were completed under the formalized Feeder Hardening strategy and cross-reference them with feeders that failed during Hurricane Sandy and the 2013 Blizzard.

Response:

As described in the question, the formalized Feeder Hardening strategy identified feeders with characteristics indicating the potential for significant reliability performance improvements related to deteriorated overhead equipment and/or lightning interruptions. The Feeder Hardening strategy was also more focused on feeder mainline than on side taps to gain the largest benefit. This strategy was not a comprehensive storm hardening strategy and did not remove the chance of failures during a storm where assets can experience damage due to strong winds, heavy snow or ice, and branches or whole trees coming down.

There are approximately 387 distribution feeders in Rhode Island. Fifty nine (59) of these feeders were included in the feeder hardening strategy. These feeders were selected for the feeder hardening strategy as they represented the best opportunity to improve day to day reliability performance due to deteriorated overhead equipment and/or lightning interruptions, which may not be the typical major causes of interruptions during snow or wind events. During Hurricane Sandy, a total of 176 feeders experienced interruptions. Of these feeders, 36 of them were included in the feeder hardening program. During Hurricane Sandy, 67 of the 176 feeders that experienced interruptions locked out. Of the feeders that locked out, 11 included in the feeder hardening program.

During the February 2013 Nor'easter, a total of 237 feeders experienced interruptions. Of these feeders, 41 were included in the feeder hardening program. During the February 2013 Nor'easter, 121 of the 237 feeders that experienced interruptions locked out. Of the feeders that locked out, 14 were included in the feeder hardening program. Three of these locked out feeders also experienced loss of supply.

The Company is undertaking a pilot to identify areas of potential storm hardening, as discussed in the ISR Plan and COMM 1-7 (Tunk Hill Reliability Project). This pilot will assess the methodologies for identifying candidate locations and scoping of projects to respond to identified issues and will evaluate several other elements, including the use of Grade B construction at

Responses to Commission's First Set of Data Requests
Issued February 18, 2013

Commission 1-19

Request:

Please identify the number of poles that were replaced as a result of Hurricane Sandy and/or the Blizzard of 2013. Please indicate the age of each pole that was replaced. Please also indicate the cause of the pole failure, if known.

Response:

Please see attached file Attachment COMM 1-19 for a listing of poles replaced during Hurricane Sandy and the February 2013 storm. Please note that the data for the February 2013 storm is preliminary, based upon confirming work orders received from the field through March 3, 2013. The specific cause of individual pole failures is not tracked during a storm; however, the predominant cause in both Hurricane Sandy and the February 2013 storm is believed to be tree/limbs falling onto the lines supported by the pole.

Commission 1-22

Request:

Following the Blizzard of 2013, what percentage of the recovery work was performed by National Grid employees (for each type of work) and what percentage was performed by contracted vendors? Please provide a comparison to Massachusetts Electric recovery work.

Response:

The Company has utilized crew counts as the best available data for determining the percentage of work performed following the February 2013 Nor'easter (Blizzard of 2013). The chart below provides a breakout of the maximum crew counts by type of work performed by National Grid employees and by contractors in the Rhode Island and Massachusetts jurisdictions.

Commission 1-24

Request:

How is National Grid compensated for pole attachments by entities other than Verizon and how is that factored into the ISR budget?

Response:

National Grid invoices pole attaching entities for rent on an annual basis. Pole attachment rental fees are regulated and calculated in accordance with Federal Communications Commission requirements. The annual rental income revenue from pole attaching entities goes to the Electric Miscellaneous Revenues account and serves as an offset to the cost of service for electric customers in Rhode Island. Pole attachment rental fees have no impact to the ISR budget. National Grid also invoices pole attaching entities for make ready costs arising from their pole attachment application. Make-ready costs can include expense and capital costs (depending on the nature of the work required). For make-ready costs, the capital costs reimbursed by the attaching entities are credited to Capital thus reducing the amount of investment reflected in the ISR.
